The Red House

The Red House has witnessed and undergone many changes in its century-plus history. Once a favorite movie house among the gay community, it is today a trendy hub for cultural and artistic creativities during the daytime. After nightfall, the open-air bars on its South Square are always abuzz with laughter. This open space attests how the LGBT+ community can confidently step out of the shadows and enjoy themselves.

2

Rainbow Six

On May 17, 2019, Taiwan became the first country in Asia to legalize same-sex marriage. To commemorate this milestone, the Taipei City Government installed a land art work titled Rainbow Six at Exit 6 of MRT Ximen Station. This is now not only a top check-in spot on social media, but also a fitting declaration of Taipei's message of pride to the world.

3

Ketagalan Boulevard

Ketagalan Boulevard, in front of the Presidential Office Building, is a major site for marches where people voice their demands to promote the country's progress. This venue has also served as the starting and end point for Taiwan LGBT+ Pride multiple times, a witness to how gender and marriage equality have sprouted in Taipei.

📍 Ketagalan Blvd., Taipei City

4

228 Peace Park

228 Peace Park used to be an important rendezvous point for gay men. Many suffered unlawful detention amid a massive police raid on nearby Changde Street, leaving behind an indelible mark of sorrow. With the rise of awareness, the Taipei City Government transformed the somber park entrance into "The Rainbow Gate," a symbol of coming to terms with the bitter past of the LGBT+ community.

📍 3, Ketagalan Blvd., Taipei City

5

PAR.T

Taking its name from the word "part," the store aims to convey the idea that the LGBT+ community is an intrinsic part of society. In addition to offering a diverse range of products such as gender-neutral underwear and rainbow accessories, the store also helps promote the cause by sponsoring equality movement activities.

Pride Celebrations

Where Rainbows Meet

Taipei is home to a proud group of activists. A variety of initiatives have been taken to convey friendliness and inclusiveness, welcoming the LGBT+ community from across the globe for wonderful encounters.

May

International Day Against Homophobia

This day is to advocate for an end to discrimination against the LGBT+ community. As the first Asian city to join the Rainbow Cities Network, Taipei has raised the rainbow flag on May 17 every year since 2020, while rallying all sister cities and foreign missions in Taiwan to join the cause.

June

LGBT Pride Month

The Stonewall Uprising in New York in June 1969 was a tipping point for gay rights movement and has later evolved into an annual celebration worldwide in the form of various gender equality initiatives. International leading brands and friendly businesses in Taipei actively show solidarity.

October

Taiwan LGBT+ Pride

Taipei Rainbow Festival

Taiwan LGBT+ Pride is held on the last Saturday of every October. This largest gay pride parade in East Asia has had different advocacy themes over the years, from ending discrimination to calling for equality, with a view to uniting collective efforts and driving progress.

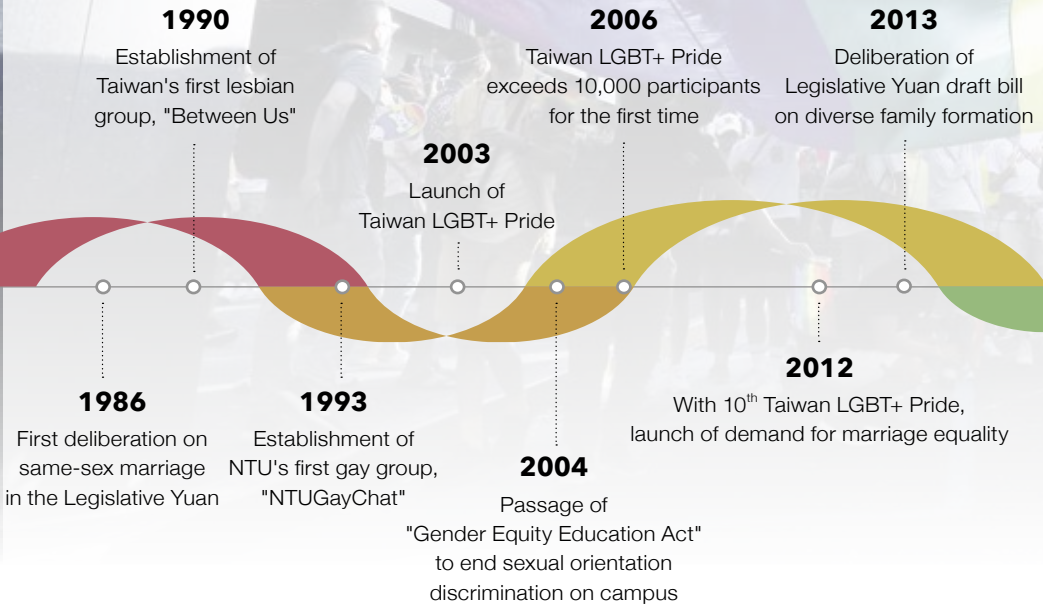

Co-organized by the Taipei Culture Foundation and The Red House, this event coincides with Taiwan LGBT+ Pride. Gender-friendly brands are joined by distinguished figures from the LGBT+ community presenting a free and vibrant rainbow carnival for like-minded individuals.

Milestone Retrospect

Moving Forward Together

Taiwan's LGBT+ movement began as early as the 1990s. Far from a road of roses, the collective power built up and a social consensus was forged. Slowly but surely, the living space for the LGBT+ community is eventually expanded.

From hiding in the shadows of 228 Peace Park to proudly embarking on Ketagalan Boulevard to fight for rights, Taiwan's LGBT+ movement has turned a new page. Yet we must keep moving forward for an even brighter and colorful future.
